GROUSE MOORS.

HOW TO SPEND THE HOARDINGS OF THE EAST.

This is the merry season among the blooming heather on the airy moors of Scotland. The kynochs and the corks are banging, the birds are cackling and whirring, the beaters wave their red and white flags while they advance shouting,
the dogs are being urged to "Seek dead!
Seek dead!" there is many a tale of grouse in the gun-room, and some grouse
in the rain, while the keepers are kings of creation. Hearing Mr. Money state how many thousands a year will be the minimum on which he can possibly retire, one fancies that it is only by large scale entertaining on grouse moors that he will be able to find full scope for his spending powers. Neither sons at the Public Schools nor daughters at the bar, horses on the turf, nor hounds in the home counties, winters at Monte Carlo, stars in Hollywood, nor even peaches in Georgia will be a big enough hobby.
Grouse shootings it must be. They cost enough. Unfortunately, it is impossible to set up a moor and learn by practice how its done before going home. But perhaps a little theory is worth something.

THE MOOR.

The usual grouse moor consists of high ground, more or less heathered and heather-burnt, of an area equaling three or four times the area of the golf course at Fanning. Although the moor is often too high for even heather to grow on it,
the customary physical features are no more difficult to negotiate than those of a first rate golf course. But there are some moors which are more like the north side of the Peak. Grouse-shooting, even when conducted from butts—the only method with considering—involves a good deal of walking. Before the war fairly good grouse moors were let as cheap as a pound a bird. That is to say, if you rented a moor with the proprie-tor's permission for, and your own expectation of, shooting nine hundred brace of grouse, you would pay about two thousand pounds rent. Failure to get your limit did not entitle you to any rebate.
Some moors were let without any limit;
the birds being either very plentiful, or very scarce, and the rent varying accordingly.

THE LODGE.

In return for this rent you have the right to bring as many guests, called
"guns," as you can find for several weeks of the year, after the glorious twelfth; and employ at your own expense as many keepers, gillies, loaders,
and beaters, as you find necessary to assist these guns in shooting the grouse.
Somewhere in the neighbourhood of the moor there will be a shooting lodge for the accommodation of your party. The lodge may be an old castle with modern fittings, or it may be a corrugated iron bungalow with no fittings. Hot baths, a billiard room, ample servants' quarters,
good kennels, hard beds, and quaint chairs which are uncomfortably old-fashioned without being interestingly antique, will be found in the first class
shooting lodges, whether they are built in the old baronial or the Victorian chalet style.

"GUNS."

Having thus purchased the right to shoot on a moor, and to inhabit the lodge and having put the lodge in what seems to you a habitable state, your next step is to find people who will go there with you. This is the most important, and difficult step of all. You don't merely want guests; you want guests who are unquestionable to shooting skill. Must be strictly proportioned to shooting skill.
This is not an ephemeral tennis party
where inferior skill causes only a passing and countless quarrel. Serious losses are contingent on failure to shoot a sufficient number of birds. There is first of all the financial loss of small sales to your game-dealer. Your associates in the sport of killing grouse, imported guests who co-operate out of sociability, and the local levies who assist as a means of livelihood, will both alike refuse to eat the game they pursue. You must either bury your dead or sell them. It is so easy to do the latter that all shooting tenants, other than the most vulgar
of the newly rich; count on the game-dealer's credits as a small, but interesting, return on their expenditure. Many a grouse that drinks its fill in solitude on the shores of Loch Lomond at dawn, is hampered with many a brace of fellow corpses in the London train before midnight. The bird which cost you a pound to be allowed to shoot, and which has cost you at least ten shillings more in the incidental loss of shooting, can be sold to the game-dealer for a few shillings at the beginning of October. But you can't collect cheques from the game-dealer without first of all collecting guests who can shoot. There are other losses incumbent upon the tenant who can't collect guns. By failure to shoot enough birds to keep the stock healthy thinned, or by the introduction of disease through birds being wounded by bad shots instead of being killed, he may be responsible for a deterioration in the value of a moor. It is conceivable that an action might lie. Because the proprietors of grouse moors take great care of their rights. To ensure that a proper gamebook record is kept of the daily bag, proprietors often provide, at the tenant's expense, a watcher who consults on occasion, or, if not treated with sufficient kindness, may even insist on counting the bag. But the financial advantages, ensured by securing good shots

as guests, are as nothing compared with the physical dangers risked by harbouring bad shots.

GUESTS.

For these reasons the mobilisation of guests for a shooting season is an enterprise calling for enterprise. Ability to sing a comic song, to talk wireless, to cross-word puzzles, or dance the Charleston should not be taken as a recommendation for August, if associated with inability to hit driven grouse. An impecunious captain of the line, with an old suit and a hired gun, if able to pick his brace or two out of every covey, who sprinkles the butts and beaters with brown tweeds, fancy guns and valuable retrievers, whose only skill is in claiming birds that better men have shot. The best shots are to be found among members of the Stock Exchange, the Army and the Landed Aristocracy. There may be even better shots among the people employed as loaders and keepers. But it is not the thing to make use of the latter
in that capacity, unless surreptitiously, to get the bag up to the limit. Nor is it a good thing to choose your guests solely on account of skill and without any consideration for self, even when they belong to the class called "gentlemen." Very few leaders have such a general good shooting as to feel that a good bag can be a solace for a poor tip. For the sake of the country your guests must be rich, and for your own sake they must be clever shots. The combination is so rare that, even in shooting parties of only half a dozen guns, there is usually at least one stumour. Men possessed of the requisite talents are courted by shooting tenants with as much zeal as the managers of football teams expend on the transfer of players. Their gun cases are never seen in railway carriages; Rolls Royces rejoice to meet them wherever they care to go in the autumn. And money can't buy them.
Only the most noble and distinguished shooters can get enough of the right sort.
That is the snag about setting up as tenant of a grouse moor, if you have never been an admiral or a general, and noble as well as rich.

THE HEAD GAMEKEEPER.

Having sunk the money, and done the work, you are now free to watch the gamekeepers enjoying their annual festival. You move on to the ground about the tenth of August, hand over everything to the head game-keeper and hope for his approval. You have acted the part of sergeant major, and now report
all present and correct to your O.C. who will benevolently take charge of the parade, and will praise or blame you according as things go well or ill. With you, an "Aye," and "Hum," and
"Oh aye," and "Maybe," he will listen to your proposals. It is not likely that he will acquiesce in many of them. Of the only guest for whom you feel any real friendship, and for whom you are really anxious to prepare the thrill of grouse-shooting, he will probably tell you
"Master Blank! Nah, Nah! He'll have tae fush! A'we heard tell o' him. Deed
a gun will let him fire on this hill."
His way of enjoying the shooting may not be your way, but be sure that it is the only way that will work. Even if he allows you the poorest butt at the best drive, refuses to allow you to take out your favourite dog because he says he has seen it chase rabbits, and insists on taking the party to the farthest and roughest part of the hill on the hottest
day, and chooses the bogs when the weather is wet, remember it is all done in the interest of sport. He will tell you at what time to parade your guests in the morning, and declare whether you are to walk by the easier tracks or by the roughest; he will tell you how long
you have for your lunch, and at what hour you may dismiss in the evening,
and how many miles away your cars
must stop, "so as not to be arbitrary and spartan at first." He will submit. With success will come, after a week or two of slackness. No men could work day after day at the rate those fellows begin their eight weeks' work which coincides with your holiday. In the end you get your own back by cursing him lustily for each breach of the rules that he himself has made. If the weather is good, and things go well, the mountain air and liberal supplies of mountain dew, aiding the

THE CALL OF THE EAST.

A PREPOSTEROUS DELUSION.

COMMENTS INSPIRED BY THE HEAT WAVE IN ENGLAND.

The recent heat wave in England,
naturally enough, provided the subject
for many newspaper articles. A writer in the Western Morning News says:
"We hear a good deal about the 'call of the East' from people who have been out there. It is a preposterous delusion,
a mental glamour of sunshine and gorge-ousness. The average Englishman, when he gets out to the East, is very soon sensible of the call of the West. Meteorological variations are often very trying,
but nothing in this category is so trying
as the endless monotony of unbroken blue and brassy glare. In torrid lands people are ruled by the sun. Their whole mode of living is governed by the necessity to evade the ultra-violet rays, which will strike through a canvas tent and inflict sunstroke as easily as a hornet will dart through a wisp of smoke. On balance, although we often fail to realize it, we are distinctly better off in England. Even the Zoroastrians who worship the sun are very careful to keep out of the glare of its responsive effulgence. Jonathan Swift said that "It is always too hot or too cold, but the Almighty so ordains it that it is all the same at the end of the year." This is a flash of brilliant sophistry, for
the end of the year has to be reached,
and sunstroke or pneumonia may render it anything but "all the same." During the past few days the sun has given us
reason to be thankful that his outbursts of prodigality are at least of bounded duration. It is one of those popular de-lusions which continue to exist because nobody takes the trouble to contradict them, that heat in England is different from the heat in torrid lands and people
"feel it more." They feel it more simply because they are so unaccustomed to it,
and not because the thermometer plays
tricks.

In a really hot country the British settler makes up his mind that he has got to put up with the heat. Being prepared for it, he is resigned, but the fact remains that after about three years in such a climate his blood is reduced to such an anemic condition that it is imperative for him to return home. So true is it that the best climate for any man to live in is the climate in which he was born, and that Nature exacts the penalty of any violation of her own ordered plans in this as in other matters.
The sun and work do not go well together. Shirt sleeves and cummerbunds mean reduced energy and corresponding disinclination to diligence. If it were possible to work out the precise economic effect of the present heat wave upon mental and manual production, the result would probably run to astonishing figures. But here again Nature interferes with the law of compensation. The same prodigal sun which makes men languid wants a more economical condition of life. People cannot work as energetically, but they do not need to work so energetically in order to supply their physical needs. Less food is wanted, fewer clothes required; the very word
"fires" brings on an excess of perspiration, and the housing problem temporarily becomes capable of very simple solution. The luxury of thirst may be dealt with according to temperament and means, but it can be most effectively ministered to at no additional cost in the water rate.

On the whole a heat wave is distinctly pleasant, but we do not want the wave to be too long. It would be a really serious matter if it should last until we had grown thoroughly used to it.

A MILITARY OPERATION.

Remember the difficulties of his position. When the shooting is from butts, he has to carry on a very difficult campaign, very much at the mercy of the weather, and commanding two separate forces, which have to act with precision and in unison, but are both equally undisciplined. One force consists of beaters, and the other of guns. The scheme is the employment of mobile forces to round up a scattered army and drive them on artillery in fixed positions. There are usually four or five drives, or beats, a day; and each is a battle fought over different and difficult ground. The troops have to be rapidly transported, chiefly on their flat feet,
and silently deployed. This keeps alive
the keen military instincts of the highland gamekeeper, and does more in unrecognized training for certain forms of war than any amount of barrack-square drill. Even if a soldier misses autumn manoeuvres for the sake of autumn moors, his military education need not suffer in the least, provided he attends to the tactics of each situation. Results are precisely measured, not by umpires,
but by the numbers of the enemy killed.

CLASS CONSCIOUSNESS IN EDUCATION.

[BY DR. J. A. NAZIN, HEADMASTER OF
MERCHANT TAYLOR'S SCHOOL.]

One among the many disquieting phenomena in our social life of to-day is the growth of class-hostility. Many of the self-appointed social apostles preach "class-consciousness" as a definite and fundamental doctrine.

What part is our elaborate educational system playing in this matter of class-hostility? Our system is unique; there is nothing like our English public schools, and our older Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, in the whole world. We are proud of it; we admit that others may be more efficient, that others "inculcate" harder work, that others may make intellectual achievement their chief goal. But we on our side claim that our public-school educated young men have something—a stamp, flavour, that no others can possess—which outweighs any fancied advantages claimed by French or German or American. The ideal of public-school education with us is a tradition, nay, more, a creed which it were blasphemous to question.

Yet, after all, this tradition is of no great antiquity. Down to the middle of the eighteenth century there is no sign of this belief. The most ancient and aristocratic of our schools were founded to ensure a liberal education to poor scholars. It is to them, and not to the highly placed and wealthy who mainly use them, that our ancient foundations owe their being. Eton was founded to provide education for "25 poor grammar scholars." Harrow was founded by a worthy tradesman to educate "30 poor boys of the parish," though at the end of his life he added that "as many foreigners" (that is, boys from other parishes) might be taken "as convenient." But presumably the idea was that even the foreigners should be poor. Winchester again was founded to educate 70 scholars, preference being given to the poor.

Nurseries of Snobishness.

In every case the obvious idea of the founder was to help poor scholars and to facilitate a mingling of all ranks for educational purposes. This principle is implicit or expressed in the foundation-charters of all our endowed schools.

Down to the eighteenth century the local magnates and professional men in any country neighbourhood sent their sons to the local grammar-school, where they mixed with the sons of tradesmen, farmers and so on, presumably to their mutual advantage. Class-consciousness, which means class-hostility, is not likely to flourish so vigorously where the boys have shared school "hits" and outdoor sports together. The segregation of the present day, on the contrary, is the thing most likely to embitter it.

But to-day we have got right away from this idea of mixing. The schools are now the chief strongholds of social exclusiveness and snobishness. This tendency is greatly increased by the prevalence of sport as one of the chief ingredients in the alta podrida of present-day education. Proficiency in sport alone confers prestige; intellectual distinction by itself is despised. Now non-professional sport is exceedingly costly. It is governed by sumptuary laws of the most rigid. Perfection of tools and outfit is absolutely obligatory. This inevitably tends to increase the class exclusiveness which has grown up in the schools. It should be remembered that snobishness is a marked characteristic of the young and the immature, whose shibboleths are rigidly enforced. Tolerance is only attained later in life.

Girls' Schools Mistake.

When the movement for the higher education of women took place the girls' schools were founded on entirely imitative lines. Uncritically the pioneer women copied the system in vogue for boys, with all its defects. It is hard to see how or when the education of girls will ever shake off the results of this initial folly.

As certain schools grew in fashionable esteem and attracted an ever-increasing number of pupils, another change took place: that is the change from the system of daily scholars who lived in their own homes and went every day to the school for instruction, to the system of the boarding-school. The neighbourhood alone no longer provided the majority of the scholars. In order to cope with the numbers of pupils from all over the country who desired to come to Eton or other schools, our elaborate boarding-school system, with its separate houses, its artificially-organised and self-centred life, gradually came into being.

Now the system is accepted and universally glorified throughout the country. Roughly speaking, every parent who is in a position to do so—and many who are not—deems it absolutely necessary to send his boys—and now-a-days girls, too—to schools with great and fashionable names—boarding schools. Otherwise they feel that their children will be handicapped in the game of life. The question is not "Which school will most fit him to play a worthy part in after life?" but "Which school will give him most prestige?" It is not the metal but the ball-mark which counts—surely the quintessence of snobishness.

And what sacrifices are made on this unworthy altar! Middle and upper class parents no longer dare to have large families because it is impossible to face the prospect of paying a sum of £200 a year—a very ordinary estimate—for several children in these days of poverty and high taxation. So we get the birth rate steadily falling among those classes who should be the nation's strength. The professional and administrative classes are dwindling numerically, till we are close upon the danger-point. It becomes increasingly difficult to find enough young men to undertake the administrative work of Empire.

PRISON FOR A "DON JUAN." CAREER OF TRIPLE BIGAMIST.

You are a regular Don Juan. You have ruined woman after woman and in my judgment, women are much more valuable than goods and chattels. You will go to a place where your egoism will be curbed and where you will be forcibly made an altruist.

With this comment Sir Ernest Wild, the Recorder, passed sentence of three years' penal servitude at the Old Bailey, on Jean Stuart Wynne, Stuart Wynne (36), traveller, who pleaded guilty to bigamously marrying Miss Violet Baker.

WORKED AS MINER.

Detective-sergeant Mander stated that Wynne, whose real name was Williams, was a native of Tredegar, and was legally married at Merthyr in 1911 while working as a miner. He left his wife after two years and she was compelled to obtain parish relief for herself and two children.

In 1916 he "married" Ellen Quipps, a chambermaid at a Bournemouth hotel, but left her after four months. In 1920 he was sentenced to three months' hard labour for bigamy with Miss Quipps.

Going to Manchester in 1923 he took the name of Wynne, and went through a form of marriage with Miss Shorrocks the following year. He lived with her until 1925, and there were two children.

Under the name of Captain Peter Ward he was "married" at Kilburn to Miss Violet Baker. With £400 borrowed from her father he bought a motor-car. He joined the Neasden Golf Club and posed to the members as a wealthy man.

Detective Mander added that at Manchester Wynne obtained a motor-car on the hire purchase system and sold it. Witness said he had put the facts before the Chief Constable at Manchester, who wanted this case dealt with at Manchester.

The Recorder: "The Chief Constable should read the reports of the Court of Criminal Appeal. Their view and mine is that the right thing for a Judge to do is to deal with everything known against the man, so that he can come out of prison with a clean sheet."

SYMPATHY STIRRED.

"The trouble is," said Wynne in a speech from the dock, "that I happen to meet women with some tragedy in their lives, and they appeal to my sympathy. I try to cheer them up, and they mistake it for affection. I am sorry for what I have done. I am British to the backbone, and any punishment you mete out is nothing to what I suffer from my conscience."

"My affection for Miss Baker is the one white thing in my life. I am a man who cannot understand myself, and a man who cannot do that has not much chance of his life. I have nothing to say against any of the women. They were good and affectionate women."

The Children's Loss.

The young people themselves no longer get the invaluable education which members of large families mutually provide for each other. There is no spacious life now-a-days for the children. The country houses, where children enjoyed a happy rough-and-tumble through early years in a sunny but roomy home with big gardens or grounds, where they could ask their friends to spend the holidays, have mostly been placed on the market. We can see the boards "To be Sold—suitable for School, or other Institution," scattered all over the countryside.

Children are sent away at nine years of age, or even younger, to preparatory schools where they undertake to start training and polishing the child into the mould acceptable at the particular public school his parents favour.

There is no room for children in a London flat, so that often a house taken at the seaside or in the country during the holidays is all a child has of "home." With the growth of this fashion all the older boarding-schools are crowded to overflowing—often a boy's name has to be entered as soon as he is born to ensure a place. They all have huge waiting-lists, and new schools, such as Stowe, perpetuating the same system, are equally crowded in the space of three or four years. Is the training—the real education—worth all this sacrifice, all this effort on the part of the elders?

The Results.

We see the results—small families, discontented and rebellious children, who dislike the narrowness of life which the money sacrifices made by the parents enforce on them; who evince an inevitable clinging to the artificialities of life, since their education has tended to set so much store upon conditions and amusements which necessitate large expenditure; lack of initiative, engendered by the conventional nature of their training; absence of real sympathy with young men and young women who have not had their expensive and stereotyped education, and a habit of contempt for them; real and deep, if not actually expressed—class consciousness, in short, in its worst form.

The pride and affection that a man feels for his old school is a beautiful thing in itself, but it has its dangers. Anything which tends to set men apart in groups surrounded by a ring-fence over which they can hardly manage to see their fellow-men, let alone mix with them, is always undesirable and to-day high dangerous.

The class-barriers which we, their elders, are continually striving to break down, so as to awaken men to the consciousness of the bond of their common humanity, we are steadily building up again by our system of public-school education. The first question a young man asks about another is "What school was he at?" And if the answer is not one of the famous and fashionable schools, a barrier is automatically raised, which is of all barriers the hardest to break down, because the stuff of which it is built is youthful prejudice, irrational and invincible.—Evening Standard.

TRADE LOAN BILL.

TO BE INTRODUCED INTO LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

CHARGE ON THE COLONY.

The following bill, intitled an Ordinance to charge a certain loan upon the general revenue and assets of the Colony of Hongkong, is to be introduced into the Legislative Council shortly.

The draft of this bill is published in the current issue of the Government Gazette as under:—

Whereas the Governor on behalf of the Government of the Colony of Hongkong has recently borrowed certain moneys for the purpose of making loans on security approved by him or under his authority to merchants and others in the Colony during a certain period of financial stringency:

And whereas although the demand for such loans has now practically ceased it is possible that the Governor on behalf of the Government of the Colony of Hongkong may desire to borrow certain other moneys for the said purpose:

And whereas it is desirable that any principal moneys so borrowed or to be borrowed and the interest thereon shall be charged upon the general revenue and assets of the Colony:

Be it therefore enacted by the Governor of Hongkong, with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council thereof, as follows:—

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Trade Loan Ordinance, 1926.

2. In this Ordinance, "Trade loan" means the aggregate for the time being of any moneys hitherto borrowed, or hereafter to be borrowed, by the Governor on behalf of the Government of the Colony of Hongkong, for the purpose referred to in the first recital of the preamble of this Ordinance, together with any interest on the said principal moneys due or to become due under the terms of the agreements under which the respective principal moneys were or shall be borrowed: Provided that such principal moneys, other than already borrowed or hereafter to be borrowed, shall have been acknowledged by the Secretary of State on behalf of the Government of Hongkong, in a letter or some other document addressed or delivered to the respective lenders, as coming within the provisions of this Ordinance.

3. The aggregate for the time being of the principal moneys outstanding, and included in the trade loan shall not exceed the sum of three million pounds sterling.

4. The trade loan is hereby charged upon and shall be payable out of the general revenues and assets of the Colony of Hongkong.

5. The Governor shall appropriate out of the general revenue and assets of the Colony such sums as may be necessary to provide for all payments of interest and repayment of principal moneys required by the terms of the agreements under which the respective principal moneys were or shall be borrowed.

6. All principal moneys acknowledged by the Secretary of State as coming within the provisions of this Ordinance, as provided in section 2, and all interest received by the Government of the Colony of Hongkong on loans made for the purposes referred to in the preamble to this Ordinance, and all principal moneys received by the Government of the Colony of Hongkong upon the repayment or recovery of such loans by the Government, shall be, and shall be deemed always to have been, exempt from the defence contribution provided for by the Defence Contribution Ordinance, 1901, and all such principal moneys and interest hitherto received or appropriated by the said Government, or hereafter to be received or appropriated by the said Government, shall be deducted from the Colonial revenues before the calculation of the sums payable to His Majesty's Government under the said Ordinance.

THE WEATHER.

THE WEEK-END REPORTS.

The week-end weather reports, and indications of the position of the typhoon read as follows:—

The position given at 10.45 a.m. on Saturday was Lat. 18deg. N., Long. 135deg. E. (within 100 miles). This is about 600 miles or so from Hongkong.

Meanwhile the typhoon near Hainan Island had gone to the N.W. and is filling-up. There was no news about the one which re-curved eastwards near Formosa.

At 10.50 a.m. on Saturday the Observatory reported:—

Pressure has decreased moderately from Basco to Manila and slightly over Formosa, the Loochoos and Tonkin. It has increased slightly over Central Japan and is nearly stationary from Hongkong to Chefoo.

The typhoon is filling-up to the north of Hongkong.

Another has formed to the east of the Balintang Channel. It appears to be moving westwards.

The Royal Observatory report at 6 p.m. on Saturday:—

The western typhoon is filling-up to the north of Hainan.

The eastern typhoon is east of the Balintang Channel and appears to be moving slowly westward.

THE RENTS QUESTION.

THE CHANGES SINCE DECONTROL.

Since the decontrol of the rents on July 1st, opportunity has been presented through the means for landlords who wished to do so to send out notices regarding the raising of the rentals on the properties which they own. Previously, they were generally debarred from increasing rents owing to the Restriction of Rents Ordinance. Since July 1st about half of them property in the Colony has been affected, this figure being on the number of buildings, and not based on values. Again many owners have refused to increase their rents.

Many rents in these cases are the same as ten years ago and the fifteen per cent. increased allowed last year was not put on.

Where increases have been made many of the central residential buildings have been vacated by their tenants, who have found habitation in the outlying districts, such as Shamshipo, Kennedy Town and Wanchai. The business community, however, have to remain where they are, as it is necessary for their business that their shops and stores be located in Central districts. Therefore, they have to bear the strain, and without increase in turnover, they have to pay the increase rentals. A Fair Rents' Board, as suggested by the Kowloon Residents' Association, seems to be the best solution to the present difficult position.

Another important part is taken by Maude George, George Cooper, Morgan Wallace and Otto Lederer. With this well chosen cast to aid him and his story, Tourneur has achieved a splendid result.

The story moves swiftly and dramatically. It begins with the seething of the Russian revolution, involves the theft of the crown jewels and ends with the great Japanese earthquake as the powerful climax. In between there is a sea voyage, with many scenes of beauty such as those for which Tourneur is noted, and a thrilling hold-up of an American express train.

For to-morrow and Wednesday there will be presented one of the most interesting First National pictures that has been shown for some time past, namely "Slender the Woman".

It is directed by Allen Holubar and stars Dorothy Phillips in a role that gives full scope to her exceptional dramatic ability. In every way "Slender the Woman" serves the purpose of supplying genuine entertainment of a kind that is beneficial in character.

From Thursday to Saturday inclusive, Richard Barthelmess appears as the hero in "Soul's Fire". He scores a bigger success in this film than even in "Broken Blossoms," "Tolable David," "The Enchanted Cottage," "Classmates," and "New Toys."

His playing of Eric Fane, the young American seeking to express himself in music, is a remarkable contrast to his recent comedy performances of the young husband in "New Toys." Here Mr. Barthelmess returns to the heights of tragedy. He achieves a number of fine moments of poignancy, of movie wistfulness and of powerful drama. His Eric Fane will be remembered among most of the celluloid performances of the current screen year are long forgotten.

A remarkably fine cast surrounds Barthelmess. Aside from Miss Love, the principal roles are in the hands of Helen Ware, Carlotta Monterey, Walter Long, Harriet Sterling, Richard Harlan, Effie Shannon and other well known players.

THE "STAR"

To-day's double bill at the Star Theatre, Kowloon, includes "The Wonders" with Marie Prevost and "Two Minutes to Go" with Chas Ray. Buster Keaton's two reel comedy, "The High Life," is also in the bill.

A large capable cast interprets the characters in the first picture. Charming Marie Prevost adds greatly to her past screen laurels as the central figure of the absorbing plot. Other favourites who distinguish themselves in this film are Robert Ellis, Huntley Gordon, Norma Shearer, Gertrude Astor, little Richard Headrick, Lincoln Stedman, Louise Fazenda, Hank Mann, Harold Goodwin, Lillian Langdon, Vernon Steele and Lydia Yamans Titus.

"Two Minutes to Go," a fascinating and humorous story of college life by Richard Andre, provides Charles Ray with just the sort of role best suited to his own peculiar and exceptional talent.

ATTRACTIVE PICTURES AT THE LOCAL THEATRES.

Another very attractive list of pictures will be screened at the Queen's Star and World Theatres this week.

At the Queen's Theatre yesterday there opened, and will be shown again to-day, Maurice Tourneur's First National picture "Torment." In this picture is combined the picturesque and thrilling.

Bessie Love, as the sweet and simple heroine, has the leading feminine role, with Owen Moore giving a strong characterisation opposite her. Jean Hersholt is to be seen in a role similar to that of his "Servant in the House."

While important parts are taken by Maude George, George Cooper, Morgan Wallace and Otto Lederer. With this well chosen cast to aid him and his story, Tourneur has achieved a splendid result.

KOWLOON BUSES.

LEYLAND "LIONS" TO ARRIVE
IN DECEMBER.

OF BRITISH MAKE.

Plans for replacing the old motor buses in Kowloon with the modern vehicles, are now going on apace. Two of the Companies—the China Motor Bus Co., Ltd., and the Kowloon Motor Bus Co., Ltd., have each ordered three Leyland "Lions" from the Leyland Motors, Ltd., of Leyland, Lancashire. In the case of the Kowloon Motor Bus Co., they have specified for the buses to be painted in attractive colours to distinguish them from the others.

The new buses which should arrive in time to be completed and ready for the road in December will accommodate about 30 passengers. The vehicle is a single-deck saloon bus of entirely new design, and is said to be exceptionally comfortable. It has a four-cylinder engine.

From Wednesday to Thursday John Bowers and Marguerite de la Motte appear in the leading roles in a picture version of Harold Bell Wright's "When a Man's a Man."

"When a Man's a Man" was produced by Principal Pictures Corporation, and the complete cast includes John Bowers, Marguerite de la Motte, June Marlowe, Robert Fraser, George Hackathorne, Forrest Robinson, Fred Stanton, Edward Hearne, Arthur Hoyt, Elizabeth Rhodes and Johnny Fox, Jr.

For Friday and Saturday "The Phantom Bullet," a Universal-Jewel production, starring "Foot" Gibson will be screened. "The Phantom Bullet" brings out the very best of the famous star. It is one of the best Western pictures produced and the best that Gibson has done. Universal deserves much credit for effecting a Western feature that strikes a new and different chord.

Allan Forrest, who in private life is the brother-in-law of Mary Pickford, is convincing and realistic as the "heavy" responsible for the many troubles in which the hero finds himself.

The girl is played by Eileen Percy, well remembered for her fine work in "The Flirt."

PROTECTION OF BRITISH SUBJECTS.

"HOPELESSLY LET DOWN
WHEN IN TROUBLE."

RECENT OUTRAGES BY PICKETS
IN SWATOW.

A SWATOW RESIDENT'S
COMMENTS.

A resident of Swatow, referring to the capture of Mr. Sim Kye Lim by the Strike Pickets, which was reported in the Daily Press on Saturday, writes:—

Mr. Sim Kye Lim, for 30 years an employee of Bradley & Co., is a worthy and greatly respected gentleman of exemplary character. He is suffering now for the crime of being a British subject.

Three months ago his services were required by his firm in connection with some Chinese official business and it was necessary for him to come and go frequently between Messrs. Bradley's office and the British Consulate. Being naturally unwilling to take the risk of assault by Strike Pickets Mr. Kye Lim applied to the Civil Governor and obtained from him a signed and chopped permit allowing him to come and go freely without restraint or molestation so long as the official negotiations were in progress. Strictly this procedure was irregular, as Mr. Kye Lim being a British subject there was theoretically no necessity for him to apply to anyone for a permit to go about his lawful business. But Swatow is such a sink of iniquity now-a-days, and nobody is impune from attack, that Mr. Kye Lim wisely preferred discretion to valour.

His movements were unchallenged until August 18th when, just as he was entering his firm's office, half a dozen armed pickets in plain clothes attacked him and he was dragged off, bound and protesting, to the Strikers' prison. He still lies there, fastened to the wall by the neck with a heavy chain and it is reported that his family were allowed to bring him food and bedding only after heavy bribery of the guards. The object of his capture is said to be the extortion of a large sum of money. If I know anything of Mr. Kye Lim the strikers will find that one of the toughest jobs they have ever tackled.

I hear that the Consul has written to the authorities demanding Mr. Kye Lim's immediate release, but presumably the Chinese will take up the same time as in Mr. Yee Suen's case, lately reported, when they do not recognise as British anyone of Chinese blood.

In this regard it seems to many of us here in Swatow that the conflict between "jus sanguinis" and "jus soli" should be thoroughly fought out and the position of British-born Chinese definitely regularised. It is, of course, a well-known fact that British-Chinese cause Treaty port Consuls endless trouble: some of them are British or Chinese just as it suits them. Nevertheless it is a sickening admission to make that H.M. Government gives them British papers and passports, guarantees them the protection for what it is worth in China now-a-days, of the British flag, and then lets them down hopelessly when they are in trouble.

MOTOR AND LORRY FERRIES.

QUESTION TO BE RAISED IN COUNCIL.

The question is to be raised at the next meeting of the Legislative Council, and a full report presented, regarding the matter of providing an efficient ferry service across the Harbour for the transportation of lorries and motor-cars as well as passengers.

In 1925, the Government wrote to the Chamber of Commerce that it regarded the institution of a vehicular ferry across the harbour as a work of considerable urgency. It was then stated by the Colonial Secretary of that time that the Government hoped to proceed with work at once, and it was on that statement thought that the schemes would be well in hand by the time a year had elapsed.

Various schemes for harbour development, including the provision of ferries for vehicular traffic have been put forward during the past few years. It was intended to have ferries capable of carrying at least ten lorries each, and passengers to travel free on such ferries. The scheme was that the ferries should run with lorries from Jordan Road, Kowloon, to Jubilee Road, Hongkong, and it was recommended in the original scheme that a wharf should be constructed at each end with concourse area so as to avoid a congestion of rickshaws waiting to take passengers from one wharf to another. A passenger would be able to go from one ferry to another without leaving the wharf.

When the Chamber of Commerce Shipping Committee considered the scheme the Chairman said that the idea he had was to provide ferries along the following lines:—

The type of ferries suitable would be equal-ended vessels of about 150 feet long by 40 feet beam, driven by steam or possibly motors and having a speed to give an eight or eight to ten minutes service. Instead of the present system of side berthing they should berth end on in an entrance of the same form as the vessel. On the lower deck accommodation should be provided for 12 to 16 motor vehicles (passenger, truck or ambulance) with a barricade on each side and the remaining space on deck would carry about 250 passengers when the full complement of cars was carried. The upper deck would accommodate about 300 passengers with a good percentage of covered-in space for bad weather.

THE ATTACK UPON THE KUOMINTANG.

SUN CHUAN FANG'S PLANS.

WU PEI FU AND CHAN KWING MING.

YUNNAN TROOPS READY.

(Asiatic News Service.)

NANKING, August 23rd (by mail).

Marshal Sun Chuan Fang has just wired to Marshal Wu Pei Fu at Changshien, informing him of the despatch of troops to Fukien and Kiangsi to attack the rear of the Kuomintang forces for the relief of Southern pressure on Hunan.

The Kiangsi and Chekiang troops, under the supreme command of General Lu Hsiang Ting, Tapan of Chekiang, will attack General Tang Sheng Chi's army in Hunan from Pinghsiang while the Fukien troops will cross into Kwangtung via Tungan and Chuanchow for attacking Swatow and Chaochow simultaneously.

Marshal Sun is quite optimistic on the situation and he expects to drive back the Cantonese troops to Kwangtung by a triangle offensive from Hunan, Kiangsi and Fukien within a reasonable period.

CHAN KWING MING.

SHANGHAI, August 10th.

A telegram has been received from Dr. Ma Soo, English secretary of Marshal Wu Pei Fu as well as member of the Chinese delegation to the Customs-Tariff Conference, and also adviser to the Wai-chiao, stating that for the sake of suppressing the left wing radicals of the Kuomintang, Marshal Wu is willing to let "bygones be bygones" by shaking hands with the members of the right wing of the Kuomintang in Shanghai and Kwangtung for co-operation purposes.

Generals Chan Kwing Ming and Lin Hui have been ordered to attack Kwangtung by Marshal Wu and Marshal Sun Chuan Fang agrees to supply them with arms and funds for the recapture of Canton during Chiang Kai Shek's absence.

PEKING, August 14th.

In response to the call of Marshal Wu Pei Fu, General Tang Chi Yao, Tapan of Hunan, has sent a special telegram to Changshien declaring that he is ready to march against the Reds at a moment's notice.

Marshal Wu has transmitted General Tang's telegram to the Cabinet and all the military leaders for perusal. The telegram states:—

"The Marshal Wu—I admire you for your scheme in driving the enemy from the Metropolis and laying over again the foundation of the nation. Your delegate explained to me the plan of your anti-Reds Campaign, and I am grateful for your interest taken in the South-west. Taking a general survey of the situation of the country, I fear that the nation will perish on account of the spread of the Red influence. We must, therefore, fight against the Red troops to their bitter end. I see that the whole country has given you unreserved support in the campaign. I am a supporter of the Republic, and am getting all my troops ready for march."

Marshal Wu in reply has instructed General Tang Chi Yao to send an expedition without any further delay.

KUOMINCHUN LOSSES AT NANKOW.

2,500 RIFLES.

30 MACHINE GUNS AND LARGE QUANTITIES OF STORES.

(Asiatic News Service.)

PEKING, August 15th.

The occupation of Nankow has been officially confirmed from General Chang Hsueh Liang's headquarters. In capturing the Nankow Pass, the Fengtien troops captured about 3,000 prisoners, 2,500 rifles, 30 cannons of various calibres, 30 machine guns and ten armoured cars and also a large quantity of military stores.

The Kuominchun are in full retreat for the protection of their second line of defence at Chuanyungkuang and Yenching, hotly pursued by the victors.

Under orders of the police, the shops and residential houses in Peking hoisted the republican flag this morning and the victory is being celebrated in allied circles to-day. The capture of Nankow is regarded as very important because the Pass is the most strong defensive work of the first Kuominchun army and its fall will force the Kuominchun leaders to retire to the interior of the north-west frontier territories. The allies expect to capture Yenching and Huailai within a few days.

MISSIONARIES SAFE.

ABERDEEN MURDER TRIAL.

PRISONER SENTENCED TO DEATH.
JURY RETIRE FOR FIVE MINUTES.

Chang Chan, the Aberdeen carpenter, who was arraigned on a charge of murdering his wife, was found guilty at the Criminal Sessions, on Saturday, and Sir Henry Gollan (the Chief Justice) sentenced him to death.

The jury retired for five minutes, their verdict being unanimous.

PRISONER'S STORY.

When the trial was continued on Saturday morning, prisoner gave evidence on his own behalf. He said that he and his wife were at variance over several things. One was regarding their daughter's betrothal. His wife was also occasionally cross with him because he did not give her much money. This, he said, was due to the fact that he could get very little work.

Dealing with what happened on the morning when his wife was wounded, he said that he awoke at 6 a.m. and began talking with her about "the affairs of life." They spoke about a possible separation, and he told her that in the event of that happening, he desired the custody of the two younger sons. She refused to agree to this and became very angry. She then took up a chisel and attempted to stab him with it. He warded off the blow and the chisel was thrust accidentally into her neck. He pulled it out immediately and blood spouted forth. He then sought to hold her up, but she thrust him aside and walked to a bed at the end of the passage. He suddenly became frightened and he went out for assistance, and also intended to go to the police station and make a report. He was unable to do so as he was arrested as soon as he reached the street.

"I AM CHICKEN-HEARTED."

Mr. Hing Shing Lo (defending Counsel): Why did you hurry away when your wife was wounded?—I am very chicken-hearted, the sight of blood frightens me and I was frightened then.

Questioned in regard to the statements made at the Aberdeen Police Station, the prisoner denied having made them.

"WIFE UNFAITHFUL."

Cross-examined by the Attorney-General (the Hon. Mr. J. M. Kemp), prisoner said that he did not understand what the charge against him was when he was taken to Aberdeen police station. He denied that it was read over to him. The statement produced by the Attorney-General appeared to be signed by him but it was not read over to him before he signed it.

Questioned further regarding the grounds for the bad feeling between himself and his wife, prisoner admitted that he had been displeased with his wife because she had been unfaithful to him some years ago, and that he had brought this matter up on the morning in question. His wife had been angry with him for bringing it up.

Asked where the woman got the chisel with which he alleged she had made an attempt to attack him, prisoner said that he noticed her feeling on the top of the matting on the bed and he believed she got it from there.

FINAL ADDRESSES.

In addressing the Jury, Mr. Hing Shing Lo, for the prisoner, said that there was no direct evidence that the prisoner intended to kill his wife and there were only certain statements which prisoner himself had denied and which he said had not been read over to him when signed. He suggested that prisoner had, at any rate, no realization of what he was saying at the time. He was not legally represented at the time and had no one to advise him. Counsel maintained that from the evidence as before them the jury could not find that the prisoner intended to take his wife's life, as they would have to find if they convicted him of the charge brought against him.

THE "ANTI-RED" MOVEMENT.

SEVERAL DISTRICTS TAKEN FROM THE KUOMINTANG.

PASSENGER BOAT PIRATED.

[FROM OUR CHINESE CORRESPONDENT.]

Reports are continually being received from sources antagonistic to the Kuomintang of the spread of the so-called "anti-red" movement in the Province of Kwangtung. As I have remarked before, however, it is difficult to judge whether this movement is an organised revolt against the administration or simply evidence of the activities of "bandit" general unrest and lack of efficient control.

It is stated that the district of Woping in Eastern Kwangtung has been an undisputed "anti-Red" possession since August 12th. For some reason the Kuomintang have failed to take any action to recover the district. Reports are current also that the district of Shao-an has been regained from the Kuomintang.

ANOTHER PIRACY.

A steam launch together with the tow-boat Heungchen, plying Kwonghai and Macao, was on August 19th pirated near Tao Moon. The pirates relieved the boat of its valuables and freight and took away more than 150 passengers for ransom. The launch succeeded in making her escape and on her return gave the military and police details of her experience.

WIRELESS IN CHINA.

MORE STATIONS TO BE EQUIPPED.

COMMERCIAL MESSAGES ENCOURAGED
AGED AT KALGAN.

(Asiatic News Service.)

SHANGHAI, August 14th.

Marshal Sun Chuan Fang has appointed Mr. Wu Tao director of wireless for Kiangsu, Kiangsi, Anhui, Fukien and Chekiang with a view to establishing more wireless stations within these five provinces. Mr. Wu's office is in Shanghai.

PEKING, August 15th.

The wireless station at Kalgan which has been transmitting commercial messages for some time past, is encouraging the use of wireless by the public. Notifications have been issued to the effect that the station will charge the same rates as the telegraph administration, with a free service of sending and decoding, and will transmit messages to Peking, Tientsin and other cities.

The Attorney-General, the Hon. Mr. J. H. Kemp, maintained that the prisoner's story of the wound being self-inflicted by the deceased was impossible having regard to the position in which the body was and that of the pool of blood.

Mr. Kemp referred to the conduct of the prisoner after the woman had been stabbed. Was it the act of an innocent man, he asked, to leave his wife in the charge of women who were endeavouring to succour her and to walk away out of the house? With regard to the damaging statements taken from his own lips and signed by him, prisoner had now been fit to deny them. They were verified by two European officers of integrity. Was it likely that they would go into the witness-box and deliberately swear that the usual procedure had been followed in this case if it had not?

His Lordship summed up, and the jury, after a retirement for five minutes, returned a verdict of guilty. When sentence of death was passed, prisoner was unmoved.

AN ASTOUNDING PIRACY.

TERRIFYING EXPERIENCE OF EUROPEAN FISHING PARTY.

SWOOPING RAID BY ARMED BAND.

PERPETRATED OFF LANTAU ISLAND.

A LAUNCH AND CREW COMMANDEERED.

The news of an astounding piracy, committed in British waters, quite close to Hongkong, and perpetrated with a mixture of daring, cleverness and sheer bravado, which is hardly conceivable under the circumstances in which it was committed, came to hand yesterday following the return to the Colony of a local European fishing party, who were the victims of the unwarranted outrage.

The scene of the piracy was Tung Ching Bay, situated at Tung Ching Island, which lies off Lantau Island, mid-way between Hongkong and Macao. The victims comprised a large party of well-known local residents, who were engaged in an all night fishing picnic, which was rudely and dramatically terminated by the swooping raid of a band of pirates, thought to be disbanded soldiers or members of a bandit gang. The sequel to the raid was that motor boats and launches belonging to the party were visited in turn by the pirates, who robbed individual members, including ladies, of all valuables they could lay hands on, and eventually disappeared in the largest and fastest launch, the crew of which they had kidnapped, when they commandeered the craft.

The story of the party's brief, but terrifying period of suspense and conjecture as to their fate is told below.

SERENITY DISTURBED.

A still and beautiful night, soft breezes insufficient even to ripple the waters of the bay nestling under the hillsides; a bright and nearly full moon shining overhead in a cloudless sky; a merry and carefree party of anglers, accompanied by their wives, relatives and friends, whiling away the drifting hours by fishing from sampans. With the worries of life and the daily round left behind, with no thought of danger to disturb the perfectness of the sport, men joking and the women laughing and chatting happily, such was the animated scene at Tung Ching Bay on Saturday evening about 8.30.

Suddenly, without warning, the peacefulness was rudely interrupted. The joking ceased, the women's laughter and chatting died away. In its place came a brief period of terrifying and unnerving experience, a period fraught with uncertainty, caused by the sudden, dramatic, and unheralded raid of a band of pirates, who proceeded calmly to rob their victims of whatever valuables they had on them. The thrill, excitement and pleasantness of the fishing-picnic vanished and the return was made to Hongkong, minus one launch and crew, the whole party considerably shaken and the women folk, as was only natural under the circumstances, in a more or less prostrate condition.

On Saturday afternoon about 3.30 a large party of local Europeans left Hongkong to spend an all-night fishing-picnic at Tung Ching Bay at Tung Ching Island, off Lantau Island. They left intending to carry out a programme which they had often carried out before. Therefore, little did they anticipate what was to befall them before they saw Hongkong again.

THE PARTIES.

The party, made up of different groups, left Hongkong in two launches and three motor boats. Part of the craft was privately owned, while the other boats were chartered.

The party were made up as follows:—Steam-launch Ching Wo: Mr. C. A. da Rocha, Mr. R. L. da Rocha, Mrs. and Mrs. H. Barnes and Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Carvalho. Steam-launch Wing Shing: Mr. Ribeiro, Mr. Rodrigues, Mr. J. Sousa, Mr. L. A. Osmond, Mr. Samy, C. F. Vass and Mr. E. L. Barrois.

Motor-boat Amy: Hongkong Electric Company, Mr. A. Gillard, chief traffic inspector, Hongkong Tramways, Mr. E. Mow Fung and Mr. M. Sousa. M.B. Paracels: Mr. F. H. Kew, Mr. C. Kew and friends.

M.B. Nuff Sed: Mr. F. J. W. Kew, who owns the boat, accompanied by friends.

On reaching the fishing ground the various craft, anchored, all within hailing distance of each other, excepting the Nuff Sed which laid to around a promontory of Tung Ching Island, and was therefore out of sight of the other craft. The Europeans left their boats and commenced fishing. Everything went well until about 8.30 when members of the party decided to return to the boats.

THE REALIZATION.

Still unsuspecting anything untoward having happened, they proceeded toward their respective motor boats, and it was not until they reached them or were in close proximity that they realized that something serious had occurred. Then, to their dismay, they learned that during their absence pirates had suddenly appeared on the scene, without warning, and taken possession.

Prior to the return of the anglers, however, the pirates had first of all boarded the Ching Wo, which they seemed to have discovered was the largest and fastest of the boats, and the one most suitable for a quick exit. There, most audaciously for the crew at the point of the revolver and forced them below decks, but at the same time compelled them to keep up steam.

The next boat visited was the Amy. Here Mr. Muskett and his party were surprised by seven pirates, all armed with revolvers and a Mauser pistol. The miscreants boarded the boat from a sampan, held up all on board, and robbed

We had begun "chow," and were about half-way through our meal when a sampan came alongside. Someone on the sampan shouted—"don't make a noise." We got up from the cabin, where we were having our meal, and saw seven men board our motor-boat. Six of them carried revolvers, and the other man was armed with a Mauser pistol, with a cartridge jacket of three rows. Before we knew what it was all about, we were all ordered to put our hands up. We were next asked what valuables we possessed, and Mr. Mow Fung, who speaks Chinese fluently, said "We have come to fish, and fishers do not carry valuables with them."

SPECTACLES "SPOTTED."

The raiders, however, "spotted" Mr. Gillard's watch and my gold ring (added Mr. Muskett) which they promptly "collared." They also "spotted" Mr. Gillard's gold spectacles, which they demanded; but Mr. Gillard promptly swore at them in English, and informed them that he was no use without them and would be unable to see if they took them away. The pirates then left him alone. Some of us had a little money with us, which we had managed to conceal by slipping it under cushions and so on.

The pirates then asked the coxswain for the vital parts of the engine. The coxswain, being smart and up to their game, adroitly handed them some spare parts which he had been working on while we were away from the boat in our sampan fishing. They seemed satisfied, however, and left the Amy. Before the pirates left, they warned us not to leave the boat, and to keep quiet, or they would come back again.

SITUATION REALISED.

We now began to realise the situation. The Chung Wo had been attacked first and commandeered by the pirates, who had overcome the crew by intimidation and terrorisation, forcing them to go below deck and leaving some of their gang on board. The crew were also forced to keep steam up, so that the launch would be ready to convey the pirates away when they had completed their raid. The Chung Wo now came alongside the Amy, and the pirate chief, who had been in the sampan ordered her to go to the Wing Shing. The sampan, with the seven men in it, then went to the Paracels owned by Mr. F. Kew, who had on board his family, Mr. Charles Kew, his family and some friends. They ransacked the Paracels for valuables, taking jewellery belonging to the ladies and making off with a haul valued at over $1,000. After the sampan left the Paracels she went to the Chung Wo. We then saw two sampans, containing some of the party of the Chung Wo, who had been fishing, approaching the launch. As they drew near, the pirates shouted from the Chung Wo "Keep away."

In one of the sampans were Mr. and Mrs. Carvalho. Mrs. Carvalho shouted out "Why can't we get on board our own boat?" In reply to this a shot was fired, but did not hit anyone. Mr. and Mrs. Carvalho instructed to take their sampan to the Paracels, and this was done, the other sampan following.

"NUFF SED" WARNED.

Mr. Carvalho jumped overboard and swam to the shore. He then walked along until he got opposite the motor-boat Nuff Sed, which was lying at a considerable distance from the other boats beyond a jutting headland, out of view of the pirates. From this point he swam out to the Nuff Sed and gave warning to the crew, who were thus able to get under way.

The pirates, after remaining in the vicinity for another twenty minutes or so, sailed away in the Chung Wo, disappearing in the direction of Lappa and Macao. The Amy then went off to Castle Peak and gave a report to the police there.

The Paracels had been partially disabled and was towed back to Hongkong by the Nuff Sed. The Wing Shing was also partly disabled by reason of the pirates having interfered with her machinery, but she was repaired sufficiently to enable her to return under her own power to Hongkong. We reached Hongkong about 2.30 in the morning. We had difficulty in getting our coxswain to take us first to Castle Peak, but eventually succeeded in doing so, after tremendous trouble.

THE RAID ON THE "PARACELS."

The Paracels, which is a large boat, was taken out by Mr. F. H. Kew. He was accompanied by his wife, his two brothers, Messrs. O. H. W. Kew and G. W. Kew, their wives and members of their families. While Messrs. F. H. and J. W. Kew went out fishing, Mr. O. H. Kew remained on board with the ladies. In spite of the fact that the pirates had raided the other boats which were not far away, those on the Paracels had no idea that anything untoward was happening. They were chatting gaily, when suddenly the pirates came along. The hush of the night was broken by a stentorian bawl came from a sampan nearby. "We have come to search for arms." In a twinkling the pirates were on deck. The occupants were startled, the suddenness of the raid was astounding. The pirates were five in number, their chief, a small but sturdy man. He rapped out his orders; he was arrogant and domineering but with a hauteur which showed that he was inflexible. But in the words of one of the persons on board "his men seemed afraid; they even slightly trembled at times; they asked, in shaky voices, if we had arms."

SHIP DISABLED.

Each of the pirates had Mauser pistols, and clips loaded with ammunition were strapped on their chests. They also carried torches. As soon as they got on board the people were ordered to put their hands up and separated.

"We don't want chow," said one, "we want dollars."

One pirate posted himself at the stern of the boat, and another went down to the engine room and terrorised the engineer and his men. They were ordered to take parts of the machinery off, and complied.

ARGUMENT OVER A COAT.

The other pirates then searched Mr. C. H. Kew and the ladies. Mr. Kew's coat was grabbed. He pulled it back. One of the pirates got exasperated. "Look here," he said, "You will be shot, you are too cheeky." He then took Mr. Kew's spectacles. "They are useless," said Mr. Kew, "they are for a blind man." The pirate tried them, apparently failed to see through them, and threw them back.

GRABBED EVERYTHING.

The ladies were robbed of their rings, their watches and their earrings. They, however, managed to secrete a few of their belongings. The total loss in money and goods amounted to $1,000.

The pirates grabbed everything they could lay hands on. Not only were the most expensive things taken, but trifling things were also commandeered, such as towels, slippers and shaving utensils. Some $400 in notes were taken, and amongst the most expensive things were a platinum wrist watch, two gold bracelets, one pair of jade earrings, two wedding rings, a pair of binoculars and a gramophone.

"Why do you want that," said someone on board, as the gramophone was taken away. "It only plays English music."

The pirates grinned. A slight objection was made when they confiscated a mahjong set. They grinned again.

EAGER TO FINISH.

A bedroom on the boat was not entered. Had the pirates done so, they would have certainly added a great deal to their haul.

"They were eager to get through with their business," said one of the occupants. "It was apparent that they were nervous. They had come, and gone in ten minutes."

NOT A SOUND HEARD.

Mr. F. H. Kew was accompanied by two of his brothers who in a fishing boat and within sight of the Paracels.

Interviewed by a Daily Press representative yesterday, he said "we were within calling distance and yet we were entirely oblivious of the fact that pirates were on the Paracels." It was astounding. Everything was over before we knew anything had begun."

Mr. Kew was positive that the pirates must have been watching them when they were having dinner at 7 o'clock, and after they saw the fishing boats leave with the Europeans, launched their attack. A Chinese in the fishing boat saw the big launch steaming away, and it was only then that they realised that something untoward had happened.

Mr. Kew with his brother, Mr. J. W. Kew, who owns the Nuff Sed, hurried to their boat, hoping to follow the launch which the pirates had taken. But when they reached the Nuff Sed and began following, they found that the launch was well out of sight.

NO ARMS.

"We had no arms either on the Nuff Sed nor on the Paracels," he continued. "But if we had, we could do nothing. I and two of my brothers were in a fishing boat, and we knew nothing. Strangely enough, not a word of warning was given by anybody."

WOMEN ILL.

"The women," added Mr. Kew, "are very sick to-day. They were threatened with the Mausers. One of the women was in a state of prostration. But it is astounding. I have fished there off and on for 15 years and nothing ever happened before."

LITTLE DAMAGED.

Before the Nuff Sed towed the Paracels back to Hongkong, the Chinese engineer of the latter was sent to Tai O Police Station to make a report.

When our representative was interviewing Mr. Kew, in his residence, the Chinese captain of the Paracels put in an appearance. He said that the engineer had returned and said that when the pirates ordered him to disable the boat, he merely loosened some pieces of machinery, and hid them. They could be easily refixed, and except that a few of the magnet wires were missing, the boat was all right.

A LIGHT ON THE HILL.

Just before the occupants of the boats were surprised, a bonfire was seen on one of the hills above Tai O. It might have been merely some Chinese carrying out the ritual of ancestor worship, but one of the victims suggested that it might have been a signal to the pirates. It was a bright moonlight night, and a good look out could be kept on the sea, from the hill. The pirates were certainly sanguine that no police launch was in the vicinity, and they timed their raid successfully.

The previous night, soon after midnight, a house in one of the villages of Tai O was raided. There were seven robbers, six of whom were armed with revolvers, and the other with a Mauser pistol. These men might well have been among the pirate gang. They might also have had confederates in Tai O, who gave them the signal of "All's well" by the light on the hill.

The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, AUGUST 23RD, 1926.

WHAT NEXT?

Once again an astounding piracy has taken place within a short distance of Hongkong, and in British waters. British citizens have been threatened with death and robbed. Women were among the party and were so unnerved by their terrifying experience that some of them have since been in a state of complete prostration. Furthermore, a launch with its entire Chinese crew was commandeered.

The party, comprising several Europeans left Hongkong on Saturday afternoon by launch and motor-boat on a fishing expedition off Lantau Island. In the evening the boats were anchored and most of the gentlemen went fishing some distance away. Silently, and without a word of warning, the boats were each in turn raided. The pirates worked with remarkable ingenuity. Commandeering the biggest launch, they then set about to pirate the others. In spite of the fact that the boats were within hailing distance, and although the fishing boats were also in close proximity, the occupants of each boat were utterly unaware that anything was happening to their friends on the other vessels. Not until the pirates swooped down on them did they realize the position. The attack was sudden, startling and astounding. The boats were disabled; the occupants robbed, and as suddenly as they had come, the pirates disappeared. Fortunately enough, not a single member of the party was injured. They returned to the Colony in the early hours of yesterday morning, and when later in the day, news of the outrage was known, it was received with indignation and bewilderment.

It is indeed remarkable that the pirates dared to have perpetrated the outrage, and with such a degree of success within a radius of twenty miles of the Colony. It might be mooted that it would not have occurred if there were sufficient police protection. At present four police launches patrol Hongkong waters, and it has been suggested that eight are at least needed. That may well be so, but had there been double that number, the piracy might even then have happened. Such an occurrence might take place ten miles away, or even in the harbour. The only difference would be that the perpetrators would not have as good an opportunity of decamping safely with their spoils. Had the occupants of the boats received the slightest warning that the attack was impending, they would probably have been well able to frustrate their attackers.

The Chinese pirate is a daring scoundrel. He appears unexpectedly, is ingenious, and he disappears in the intricate inlets of the China Coast, hides in caves, and when pressed hastens to the mountain fastnesses of his country. Even in Hongkong waters persons must be on the qui vive in case he decides to carry out one of his daring and, unfortunately, too successful exploits.

Something must be done to make it impossible for him to come and go with impunity in the waters of this Colony. Some systematic and thorough project must be formulated to defeat him. It should at least be possible to extirpate him and his kind from British waters. Europeans generally are very wrathful and indignant at this latest outrage. That something must be done is apparent, else we shall be wondering "What Next?"

"BRITISH GAZETTES" REALISE £18.

A good many people in Hongkong had copies of the British Gazette sent to them by friends at home during the General Strike. How many of them were kept! It is an interesting question because the original issues are growing so scarce that, it is said, they are now commanding as much as £18 per copy of No. 1.

Perhaps one of the most interesting of recent publications is that of the British Gazette in miniature in booklet form, in which are reproduced reduced facsimile pages of each issue of the Government organ. The type is clearly readable even to the Stock Exchange prices, and the booklet provides an admirable souvenir of the unprecedented events of May, 1926.

In the event of the owners failing to nominate a member to represent them on the Board within seven days the Chairman of the Board will appoint a person on their behalf.

Slight increases in the price of products of the British American Tobacco Company are reported to have been introduced owing to the increased cost of manufacture. An increase of one cent a small packet of Camstar should be sufficient to cover the increased cost to retailers. This is being charged by most street vendors of the fragrant weed, but in some shops the price has gone up to 20 cents a packet of ten Camstars, because shopkeepers do not deal in amounts of less than five cents. With regard to tins of fifty cigarettes, such as "Three Dots," and tins of tobacco, such as Captain Navy Cut, these still remain at the usual price at the leading tobacconists.

OBITUARY.

FUNERAL OF NAVAL TELEGRAPHIST.

THE LATE LDG. TEL. L. CARLINE.

The funeral of the late Leading Telegraphist Leonard Carline, of Submarine L.7 (whose death, under tragic circumstances, was reported in Saturday's Daily Press) took place at the Happy Valley on Saturday evening with Naval honours.

In addition to being a fine swimmer and a good water polo player, Carline was also a clever and enthusiastic footballer, was exceedingly popular, among his naval compatriots and with the military and civilians who were acquainted with him in sporting circles.

Deceased leaves a mother and other near relatives in Manchester. From official circles it has been learned that the cause of death—heart failure or electric shock—has not been definitely established. For this purpose a Royal Naval Court of Inquiry will sit this morning, but the proceedings will be conducted in private.

THE FUNERAL.

The popularity of Leading Telegraphist Carline was demonstrated by the large number of people present at the funeral. Apart from the naval ratings and marines attending in the course of duty, there were also many from the naval, military and civilian circles to pay their last respects to a good comrade and sportsman.

The coffin, draped with the Union Jack, surmounted by a beautiful wreath, was drawn on a gun-carriage from the Royal Naval Hospital to the Cemetery by comrades of Submarine L.7 and other submarines in the local flotilla. Submarine flotilla men also acted as bearers; while a Naval firing party was also provided.

There were over 150 Naval ratings and Royal Marines present, and, in addition, a detachment of military attended.

The deceased had recently been admitted a member of the Sir James Oxberry Lodge of the R.A.O.B., and over fifty brethren of this order attended the funeral, the lodges represented being the Grand Provincial Lodge of China, the Sir James Oxberry Lodge, the St. Ambrose Lodge, the Durban and Prince George Lodge, the Oriental Lodge and the St. Gloria Lodge.

Altogether there were over 200 present. The Rev. G. H. Hewitt, M.A., R.N. Chaplain, officiated.

Officers from every war ship and submarine in port attended, namely from the Tamar, Ambrose, Submarine Flotilla and Forth.

The officers present were Lieut. H. Warner (Commanding Submarine L.7), Lieut. Commander Balfour (Commanding the Submarine Flotilla), Lieut. Commander Young, of H.M.S. Tamar, and Commander Poland, of H.M.S. Ambrose. At the close of the burial service, three rounds were discharged by the Naval firing party; while a bugler from the Royal Marines sounded the "Last Post."

BLOODLESS REVOLUTION IN GREECE.

GENERAL KONDISIS MASTER OF THE SITUATION.

WAR MINISTER ARRESTED.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

ATHENS, August 22nd.

A bloodless revolution has broken out. General Kondilis, who is master of the situation, has arrested the War Minister, Tsoroulis, and ordered the arrest of Pangalos. The insurgents have occupied the telegraph office and all the military establishments.

ARMY SUPPORT THE NEW GOVERNMENT.

All the Army officers have placed themselves at the disposal of the new Government, which Kondilis, who holds anti-Bolshevik views, has ordered by proclamation. It will be formed on National lines, under the Presidency of M. Kondouriotis.

M. Pangalos is at present on the island of Spezzia.

FLEET AND ARMY SUPPORT NEW REGIME.

LATER.

Kondilis carried out his coup with the aid of the Athens Garrison.

He explains that the revolution is aimed at destroying Pangalos' tyranny.

The fleet and army support Kondilis, and a warship has gone to Spezzia to arrest Pangalos.

Athens is quite calm.

CHURCH AND STATE.

THE VATICAN AND MEXICO.

ROME, August 21st.

The Vatican has issued a semi-official statement regarding the Mexican situation, to the effect that President Calles refused to accept the demands of the Mexican Bishops regarding the suspension of the Anti-Catholic laws and the attainment of a fair separation and arrangement between Church and State has created no surprise at the Vatican, where the refusal was foreseen.

EPISCOPATE'S NEXT STEP.

MEXICO CITY, August 21st.

Following President Calles' reply to the Archbishop's petition, the Episcopate announces that an appeal will be made next Congress to amend the religious clauses of the Constitution. Catholic laymen will handle the campaign, as clergy are forbidden to take part in political activities. The National Chamber of Commerce, which has been considering the economic situation has adopted a resolution advising Mexican business people to reduce their purchases of foreign commodities and suggesting a substantial increase in import duties, particularly on luxuries. Also the formation of a Government Commission to supervise the issue of foreign drafts to combat the sending of Mexican money abroad.

PRESIDENT CONFERS WITH CATHOLIC DIGNITARIES.

MEXICO CITY, August 22nd.

For the first time in Mexican history, since the period of the War of Reform sixty years ago, the President has officially conferred with high Catholic dignitaries. Yesterday President Calles conferred for ninety minutes with Archbishop Ruiz and Bishop Diaz on the religious question. The proceedings were cordial, but there is still a deadlock, as the prelates pointed out that the Pope had forbidden the Church to recognise the principle regarding the Churches' public property, upon which President Calles insists.

FLIGHT AROUND SOUTH AMERICA.

WASHINGTON, August 22nd.

U.S. War Department is sending five Army airplanes a flight around South America this year. The officials decline to discuss the details.

GERMANY AND THE LEAGUE.

SPEECH BY DR. MARX.

"PAINFULLY DISAPPOINTED" AS TO TROOPS IN ZONES.

[THROUGH REUTER'S SERVICE.]

BERLIN, August 22nd.

In a speech at Breslau, Dr. Marx declared that Germany's expectations from the Treaty of Locarno had not yet been fulfilled to the extent desired. Germans were painfully disappointed since the evacuation of the Cologne zone at the number of troops in the second and third zones, which lately had increased by thousands of men.

Dr. Marx said that they must be certain when they went to Geneva that Germany's entrance into the League would proceed without friction to a successful conclusion. He explained that Germany was ready to co-operate and work with the Examining Committee and in the interests of the League as a whole "We shall strive for the maintenance of the Councils and for freedom of action. We are not posing as the opponent of any candidate. We will only ask, in a final settlement, that the interests of all members of the League be taken into account."

THE "H.29" DISASTER.

A MISINTERPRETED ORDER.

LONDON, August 20th.

At the inquest at Devonport on the victims of the H.29 disaster, two officers gave evidence of ordering water to be taken in to trim the vessel and said the chief stoker misinterpreted the order and flooded the tanks. The jury found that the men died from suffocation, due to the foundering of the submarine which was the result of misconception of the order given.

The Coroner said it was impossible to blame anyone for the mistake.

FRENCH ECONOMY.

POPULARISING STALE BREAD.

PARIS, August 20th.

Decrees have been issued which prescribe returns from all areas under wheat giving an estimate of yields as well control of cereal movements and existing stocks of grain.

The Cabinet has prepared a general plan of economy and decided to control sales of commodities, improve the system of supply and the working of public provision markets.

Stale bread must be popularised and meals in restaurants will be limited to two courses, whilst profiteers will be prosecuted.

NICARAGUA'S REVOLT.

LIVELY DOINGS.

MANAGUA, August 20th.

The Revolutionaries have attacked San Antonio and killed the assistant superintendent and several employees of one of the largest sugar estates in the district. They also dynamited a troop train between Managua and Corinto. No one was killed but a few soldiers were injured.

WORK OF DESTRUCTION.

LATER.

The rebels have evacuated Quezalgueque and have burned part of the town including the largest distillery in Nicaragua. The Mayor and others are reported killed. The rebels were severely punished in other skirmishes.

THE COAL DISPUTE. WORKMEN DRIFTING BACK.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, August 20th.

The Miners' Federation Executive has communicated to the Government a verbatim report of the proceedings of their meeting with the mine owners, at which an attempt to re-open the negotiations for a national settlement of the coal dispute proved unsuccessful.

The Prime Minister, who had intended returning this afternoon to his Worcester-shire home prior to leaving on Sunday for his holiday at Aix les Bains, decided to remain in London in order to study the report.

It is stated that the miners' leaders, after further meetings of their Executive to-day in London, dispersed to their districts; and no immediate new negotiations are in prospect.

Meanwhile the chief interest in the coal situation is centred in the areas where the men are showing a desire to return to work in response to local offers by the colliery owners. The members affected by this movement are relatively small, but the development is regarded as significant.

It is reported that 2,000 men signed on for work in the Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire area to-day in pursuance of a local agreement which is contrary to the decision of the miners of the national organisation, and provides for seven hours and a half per day instead of seven hours.

In certain other coal fields the steady drift back to work, which has been going on for some time past, continues; but in all the larger areas, such as Yorkshire, Lancashire, Northumberland, Durham, and South Wales the pits are still idle.

THE NOTTS. AND DERBYSHIRE MEN'S RETURN.

The breakaway of Notts and Derbyshire miners continues. By noon a further 10,000 men signed on to start work on Monday.

Mr. Cook made an eleventh-hour change of his week-end plans, and rushed to the midland to attempt to check the breakaway.

Some of the collieries have their full quota.

The miners returned and with their ponies were taken down the pits with readiness.

The resumption evoked scenes of great enthusiasm in many villages. There was a continuous stream of men signing on at the Mansfield area, one pit having a queue one hundred yard long by nine in the morning. The men did not ask to see the terms in black white, being anxious to sign on as quickly as possible.

THE AIR DISASTER.

THE INQUEST.

RUGBY, August 20th.

De Lisle, the pilot of the French aeroplane which crashed at Romney Marsh, was an experienced civil aviator, having flown across the Channel no fewer than one hundred times.

The inquest on the three victims of the disaster, including De Lisle, has been adjourned pending the Air Minister's examination of the engines of the wrecked plane.

LORD IRWIN ON AGRICULTURE.

Speaking as "a farmer to farmers" the Viceroy at Nagpur recently made an interesting contribution to the discussion of India's agricultural problems. His Excellency's practical knowledge of and enthusiasm for the premier industry, both of England and India, are well known and added special importance to his exposition of India's needs in developing the industry which enables her to export the produce necessary to pay for the goods which it is necessary for her to import.

Nor did His Excellency fail to express his strong sympathy with schemes which rendered it possible for India to deal with the raw material from the seed to the factory. But, in the main, the chief need is for the leading spirits of Indian agriculture to set an example in adopting progressive methods for the improvement and the intensification of their enterprise. The farmer, whether in Great Britain or in India, is notoriously conservative, but in few industries is enlightened receptivity of new ideas more profitable.

U.S. AND WAR DEBTS. SETTLEMENTS MAY BE MODIFIED.

NEW ARMS PARLEY?

[REUTER'S AMERICAN SERVICE.]

NEW YORK, August 20th.

The World's Washington correspondent declares that the chief reason for the reported return of Mr. Houghton to America is to discuss the debt situation with a view to obtaining modification of the debt agreements in order to pacify the growing opposition of European nations.

It is added that while Mr. Houghton does not favour an immediate yielding to the clamour by debtors, he is convinced that the time is not distant when the debt settlement must be revised, especially the British, who, he says, may be willing to adhere to the agreement but feel that they have been treated unfairly since greater concessions have been made to others.

HOLIDAY TIME.

WASHINGTON, August 20th.

State Department officials are not aware that Mr. Houghton, who is holidaying in Scotland, is returning to America, but they remark that it is the vacation season.

NAVAL LIMITATIONS.

NEW YORK, August 20th.

"The United States to call its own parley on arms if Geneva fails" is the headline in the New York World to a dispatch from its special correspondent at President Coolidge's camp.

The correspondent claims that President Coolidge intends to proceed further with naval limitations whether the League of Nations is successful or unsuccessful. He states that Mr. Kellogg hinted this in his Plattsburg speech.

The writer claims that this statement of President Coolidge's intention is the first concrete information since the inception of the League discussions, and says President Coolidge is merely holding in abeyance his own disarmament programme, which he is ready to revive if the League wavers.

JAPAN FAVOURS AMERICA'S IDEA.

TOKYO, August 21st.

It is understood that the Government highly approves of Mr. Kellogg's Plattsburg speech in which he expressed the opinion that regional agreements were best for regulating land armaments, but impractical for limiting naval construction.

The speech is taken as meaning that President Coolidge expects to call a Naval Disarmament Conference in the event of a Geneva failure.

Official circles never anticipated that Geneva would be successful, though the Government has sincerely endeavoured to make it successful as it is anxious to enable Japan to reduce her huge naval expenditures.

As, however, political observers believe that the coming Diet will be dissolved, after which there will be a general election under the new suffrage law, whereby it is estimated nine million new voters will participate, the attitude on disarmament will possibly alter if a new Government other than a Ken-sei-kai is installed.

DOG AND HIS MASTER'S DEATH.

At Camberwell an inquest was held on the body of Francis John Woodard, aged 35, a waiter, of St. Cloud Street, West Norwood, who was found dead in a bath at his home. From the evidence it appeared that Woodard's wife had gone into the country for a few days, and he was to have joined her there. For three days the neighbours were disturbed by the incessant barking of Woodard's small terrier dog, and one of them entered the house and took the dog home for a meal. As it still continued to bark and appeared very restless, the house was again entered. Thereupon the dog immediately led the way to the bathroom door, upon which it began to scratch. Upon the door being forced, Woodard was found dead in the bath, which was full of water. Dr. C. H. Welch said he found the door, window, and flue of the bath room shut. Death was due to syncope from asphyxia from the vitiated atmosphere. There must have been a slight escape of gas. The Coroner recorded a verdict of death from misadventure.

THE FIGHTING IN THE FAR EASTERN CABLE NEWS.

A SHANGHAI AMALGAMATION.

BRITISH C.O.C. AND CHINA ASSOCIATION.

SHANGHAI, August 21st.

A general meeting of the British Chamber of Commerce was held to-day for the purpose of considering the amalgamation of the Committees of the Chamber and the Shanghai branch of the China Association with a view to closer co-operation. The meeting adopted the following resolution: "That this meeting of Members of the British Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai hereby ratifies the amalgamation of the committees of the Chamber and the Shanghai branch of the China Association." The amalgamation is effective from September 1st under the title of the British Chamber of Commerce and China Association Committee of Shanghai.

PIRATES AND PICKETS.

THE MISFORTUNES OF A LAUNCH.

DETAINED IN CANTON.

The launch Fee Din, formerly registered in Hongkong as the No. 1 of steam tugs and launches, which some time ago went on the Canton-Nantao run, has met with many misfortunes. She was recently pirated.

Leaving Nantao some three weeks ago some eighteen pirates, unknown to the officers and crew, had mingled with the passengers. One of them began a quarrel with the commander, and the latter, becoming truculent, the pirate held him up with a revolver and called upon his comrades. The officers, crew and passengers were cowed and searched, but as the launch was making for the nearest village inside British territory a Cantonese gunboat appeared. The pirates jumped overboard; some of them were killed by shots from the gunboat, and it was thought that the others were drowned.

But once again misfortune dogged the Fee Din. All went well on her return to Nantao, but coming back to Canton with about 20 piculs of salt fish and 10 piculs of mangoes on board, she was encountered by strike pickets. The pickets held that the cargo had come from Hongkong and seized the vessel. A fine of $3,000 was levied, and it is said that the pickets demanded payment in Hongkong money. The launch is still detained in Canton.

INSTALMENTS' DANGERS.

MR. HENRY FORD ON 'RECKLESS PURCHASING.

"Mr. Henry Ford, at the moment of announcing a further reduction in the price of his cars, takes occasion to preach a sermon to the American public upon their utterly reckless purchasing on the instalment plan. In England we have no conception of the extent to which the system prevails throughout the United States," says the New Statesman.

"Of the motor-cars made in 1925 not less than 80 per cent. were sold on this basis. Probably the sales of secondhand cars are not materially different, and what is true of motor-cars is true also in America of practically all articles of luxury—musical instruments, jewels, furs and the like—and of a large part of the necessities of daily life."

"Debt in the United States has become a national industry," says Mr. Ford; "the American people no longer buy—they are backed into a corner and are sold, and it is bad business alike for creditor and debtor."

CASH BASIS.

The situation, Mr. Ford believes, will bring a jolt, which in due time will bring the American people back to a cash basis. Recent inquiries show that the percentage of loss on the instalment system is surprisingly small.

"The banks which deal in instalment paper have been prospering and expanding, and their boast is that they need for their protection an insurance fund that is relatively very small, their methods of collection are proving extremely efficient."

"All this is doubtless true; but it is obvious that the first serious check to American prosperity must shake the entire fabric of instalment credit. Not until that has been experienced and the vast losses been cut, Mr. Ford reminds his countrymen, will it be possible for them to know how they stand in relation to purchasing power."

PEKING, August 21st.

Latest reports indicate that the Kuomintang forces evacuated Kalgan on the 16th instant while the forces at Nankow and Huailai had previously been reduced to two and one brigades, respectively, which had been instructed to hold on as long as possible.

Fengtien aeroplanes found Kalgan undefended on the 17th instant, and the Fengtien advanced cavalry and artillery reached Kalgan on the morning of the 18th. The Kuomintang forces had successfully removed all important military stores.

According to semi-official reports Marshal Feng Yu Hsiang ordered a general retreat, which the majority of the Kuomintang's leaders deemed unwise but did not dare to oppose.

WU PEI FU EXPECTED TO LEAVE FOR HUPEH.

PEKING, August 21st.

In accordance with the recent announcement that he would proceed South when the Kuomintang was driven out of the passes, Wu Pei Fu left Changhsintien at noon to-day, his immediate destination being Paoing but in view of the developments in Hunan it is expected that he will go on to Hupeh with the least delay.

Chi Hsieh Yuan arrived at Changhsintien yesterday and has taken over the command of the Chihli-ites in North China during Wu Pei Fu's absence.

MARSHAL WU AND THE CABINET.

PEKING, August 22nd.

Liu Meng Kung, Chi Hsieh Yuan's delegate, proceeded to Paoingfu from Changhsintien yesterday evening in order to consult Wu Pei Fu with regard to Cabinet reorganisation. Wu Pei Fu is reported to have insisted upon Tu Hsi Kuei retaining the Premiership.

BOY'S JOURNEYS BY AIR.

NEARLY 50 TRIPS ACROSS THE CHANNEL.

An American boy of about 13 went to the head porter of a West End hotel where he was staying and casually asked him to reserve for him a seat in an air liner leaving for Paris the next day.

The next morning he flew over alone. The explanation was that the boy's father had been called to Paris a day or two before, and not being able to return had told his son to follow him in the usual way. But the 13-year-old traveller, with the vision of youth, had decided that trains and boats were things of the past.

"Nearly every American boy tries to take his parents up in the air, and generally persuades them to make at least one Channel crossing," said an official of the Savoy Hotel.

"Continental visitors," he added, frequently travel by air, partly to delight their children. There is a French boy, the son of a barrister, who is at school in England. He makes the air journey every term, but his father always travels with him, and goes back the next day. Although he is not yet 14, he has already made nearly 50 air journeys."

DON'TS FOR AMERICANS.

NEW YORK PAPER'S ADVICE TO THOSE IN EUROPE.

NEW YORK, July 22nd.

Noting that there are various ways for Americans to be annoying when they go abroad besides tripping up people in the street—as three Connecticut youths are reported to have done recently—the World this morning offers the following list of "Don'ts" for the use of European-going travellers:—

1. Don't boast that the American currency is the only real honest-to-God money in the world. It isn't. Besides, such boasts of financial patriotism are annoying to people who did not spend the years 1914 to 1918 in accumulating world credit.

2. Don't fret too much in public that a dinner which costs 70frs. one Monday costs 125 the next.

3. Don't grumble if the Customs official on the Swiss-Italian frontier wishes to know how many cigars you are bringing with you, and don't call his interest meddlesome. When you return home it will be your privilege as an American to pay tax not only on cigars but also on every blessed thing you buttoned up while you were in Europe.

4. Don't confide to your fellow-passengers in railway trains that America is the most generous of all creditors because she has cancelled all that part of the debts which nobody can collect.

WEEK-END SPORT.

LAWN BOWLS.

SATURDAY'S SECOND DIVISION LEAGUE GAMES.

INTERPORT TRIAL.

Only three games were played in the Second Division of the Lawn Bowls League on Saturday afternoon. The match between the Kowloon Cricket Club and the Indian R.C. was not played as the latter club were unable to raise a team. They have, therefore, conceded the points of this match, and it is also understood that the Indians have also conceded the points to the East Point Recreation Club, whom they were due to meet this week.

Playing on the Craigengower C.C. green, the Civil Service C.C. lost by a narrow margin to Tai Koo, and this match completed the League programme of the former team.

By winning against the Yacht Club, the East Point R.C. are now running neck and neck with the K.C.C. for the championship, and having been given the points by the Indians have completed their programme.

Next Saturday the K.C.C. will meet the Craigengower. If they lose their match East Point will secure the championship of the Second Division, but if the K.C.C. win a play off between the two clubs will become necessary.

The Craigengower defeated the Club de Recreo away by a small margin.

Details of the matches follows:—

TODAY'S IMPORTANT MATCH.

Considered rivals for League Honours, the Victoria Recreation Club and the Kowloon British School Former Pupils' Association "A" teams will meet each other at 5.30 this afternoon. A battle royal is expected, the result of which will place the victors in a safe position for the trophy.

Last year these teams played a drawn match in the League matches and subsequently met again in the final, from which the Club emerged victorious after playing extra time.

The other match to-day starts at 6.00 between East Surrey and the Royal Navy.

INTERPORT TRIAL.

A good number of keen bowlers enthusiasts assembled on the Kowloon Cricket Club's ground on Saturday afternoon to see the first real trial game in connection with the approaching bowls interport with Shanghai and at the Northern port. The local team are likely to leave Hongkong between September 6th and 10th. Another trial is to be played next Saturday.

The standard of play was of a very high order throughout. There were few, if any failures, and the majority of the hands were keenly contested. It is considered that whatever team is finally selected to represent the Colony, they should not fail to return to Hongkong with the "ashes".

SUCCESSFUL CONTESTS AT V.R.C.

REAR-ADMIRAL STIRLING PRESENT.

The first night fete of the present season was held at the Victoria Recreation Club on Saturday evening. There was a good attendance, considering that there was a counter-attraction at Tai Koo. Some excellent swimming contests were witnessed.

Among those present were Rear-Admiral J. H. B. Stirling, C.B., who is shortly taking over the chairmanship of the V.R.C., Miss Stirling, Mr. W. Logan, acting Chairman of the Club, Mrs. Logan and Col. Robertson.

The programme contained a variety of items, which passed off without a hitch, and some close finishes were seen. The Misses Hunt again proved their swimming prowess by winning the 50 yards ladies' event.

G. R. Razavet was unlucky in the final of the 100 yards members aggregate (handicap) race. This popular and successful swimmer won his heat in the race by about two seconds ahead of the second man, despite the fact that he (Razavet) was heavily handicapped, being scratched man, and going at 2, the nearest competitor to him receiving 7, and going at 12 and 13, respectively. In the final, however, Razavet failed to come in for 2 place, being just beaten, after a very plucky effort.

Owing to the absence of two members of the H.V.D.C. at Tai Koo, two substitutes did service for them in the Water Polo match against the V.L.C. The goal-keeper for the Volunteers (Knights) did yeoman service and saved many shots, being beaten in the second half of the game by two hot ones from close range.

Dancing took place at the close of the events to the music of the Lyric Orchestra, which had also provided selections during the earlier part of the evening. Mrs. Logan presented the prizes to the successful competitors.

Mr. Logan, who presided at this function, thanked those who had attended, and also expressed thanks to the Committee for their hard work prior to the fete. Mr. Logan also announced that Rear-Admiral Stirling had consented to take over the chairmanship of the V.R.C. Cheers were given for Mrs. Logan, Mr. Logan and the new Chairman.

The next night fete, it was announced, will be held on Saturday, September 4th.

PEPS

At this season everybody needs the Peps
breathable tablets to ward off cold and catch colds.

As Peps dissolve in the mouth,
their rich medicinal fumes carry soothing and healing benefits direct into chest and lungs.

Inflammation and soreness in throat
or bronchitis is quickly allayed by Peps, coughs and colds are stopped in the bud, and the entire breathing system is wonderfully strengthened and fortified.

ONE GENERATION TO ANOTHER.

[By STACY AUMONIER.]

All this happened the day before yesterday. I was having tea rather late in the lounge of a South Coast hotel.
After a few minutes I became rather painfully aware of the presence of the only other two occupants of the lounge.
The pain was caused principally by the voice of the stouter of the two men. It had a kind of opaque drawl, and an accent that would have driven Mr. St.
John Ervine to deliver an address upon it at a ladies' club. You could not get away from it. It pursued its heavy
"refrained" note on a dead level.

I looked at the owner and observed that he resembled a well-known duke, but not quite. His long Bourbon face had the puffy modelling of a man who does himself well. There were bags above and beneath his tired eyes. His small mouth was framed with abnormally thick lips,
the upper one mercifully subdued by a heavy clipped moustache. The other man, who was thin and servile in his manner, was drinking cocktails, of which he had already had a sufficiency.

"I'm fed to the wayde," the duke was saying. But perhaps it would be better not to try to reproduce the accent in print. It is apt to lead to confusion.

"But why didn't you let your wife
do it?" asked the servitor.

"It's not exactly a woman's sphere.
Besides—there were reasons. You see,
Roger, we have two bally kids, one aged eight and the other five. And the wife said to me: 'John, I'm fed to the wide-de and look round the coast and find a furnished house for August and September. I've promised Diana and Eneas that they shall dig in the sand.' See?
So I toddled off in the old bus, and I've been all over the east, south, and west coast. A complete washout, old boy!"

"But why?"

"Because wherever there's diggin' in sand there are all these swarms of beastly common people. England is finished,
dear boy. In any case, the coast of England. From the Isle of Thanet to Plymouth it's all linked up like one town;
tattered roads, telegraph poles, shabby
little bungalows, zinc chapels, shrimp
teas, bathing huts, niggers, advertisements for motor spirit, gramophones, wheel stalls, and all these millions of horrible people."

"But aren't there houses with private bathing beaches?" said the thin man.

"That's the trouble. I offered the house agents any sum within reason.
You can't rent the foreshore. Consequently there's nowhere for decent people to take their kids. They've got to herd with the rabble. And good Lord! Look at them! Look at these people! The way they dress, and talk, and eat, and walk!
Look at the people who have cars these days! You can't place them. They look like greengrocers and costermongers.
Where do they get their money from?
Look at the people in this hotel, for instance, spending money like dirt, some of them, and there isn't a gentleman or a lady among them."

The thin man gave him a nudge. The duke scowled in my direction, and I have an idea he muttered something about a qualified pianotuner, but he was too hot on the scent of his theme to be discouraged.

"It's a bad day for England in my opinion when the lower classes get the run of the country. I'm not a snob, mind you, but I believe in separating the classes. There's a lot to be said for the old feudal ideas. It isn't as though these people were any happier. They are not.
They've got hold of money, a lot of them, and they haven't the foggiest notion of how to spend it. If they could be herded together, well and good, but they are gradually eating their way into every institution in the country and converting it into a Bedlam. There's no aristocracy left, no style, no real culture.
Every Tom, Dick and Harry thinks he's as good as his neighbour. I know how it has come about, too."

"Ah!" interjected this companion.

"The war! War profiteering. No one has any idea of what went on. All the potty little shopkeepers kept very quiet
during it, but you notice directly it was over they all rushed and bought cars, extended their businesses, or retired and bought old manor houses. The swine have destroyed the whole social life of England. It makes me sick. I'm going to play a hundred up with the major."

His cheeks shook with righteous anger
as he strode scornfully in the direction of the billiard room. The thin man ordered himself another cocktail, and then, catching my eye, he seemed to decide suddenly that some kind of mild explanation or apology might not be out of place. He said:—

"Nice chap, you know, my friend—
queer ideas, you know—went to Harrow
and Oxford, you know. Clever chap, though he never passed any examinations."

He twirled the cocktail round in his glass and added ruminatively:

"Got pots of money, you know. His old father, he was a card—started life
without a bob—left quarter of a million."

"Indeed! How did he make this money?" I ventured to ask.

"Make it! Oh, what was it? Lord,
I think, or tinned meat or something,
round about nineteen hundred—you know, during the Boer War. Have a cocktail!"

In the distance could be vaguely heard
the click of billiard balls—Evening Standard.

SHIPPING NEWS.

HONGKONG SHIPPING.

The week-end shipping statements showed a decrease in tonnages and freights, but this was to be expected when the arrivals for both Saturday and yesterday (numbering the same each day)
were four below the number for Friday. Despite this, however, the figures remained fair, and on Saturday
there was even an increase shown in the Hongkong cargo, although freights for ports beyond were down on both days,
and yesterday Hongkong cargo had also decreased by half of the previous two returns. British vessels gave an exceptionally good showing and carried the bulk of the cargo for this port on both Saturday and yesterday. The tonnage figures were:—Yesterday, total: 90,011 tons (British vessels, 13,180 tons; other vessels, 76,831 tons) Saturday:—Total: 94,730 tons (British vessels, 10,533 tons, others, 14,157 tons).

At 9 a.m. on Saturday there were 53
vessels in the harbour, of which 25 were British. During the previous twenty-four hours nine vessels arrived, viz., four British, one French, two Japanese and one Chinese. The departures during the same period numbered thirteen, viz., four British, two Japanese, three Chinese, two American, one Dutch and one French.
At 3 a.m. yesterday there were 49
vessels in the harbour, of which 22 were British. The arrivals during the previous 24 hours numbered nine, viz., four British, one German, one Japanese and three Chinese. The departures during the same period were thirteen, viz., six British, one Japanese, three Chinese, two Dutch and one French.

Of the cargo entered for Hongkong

6,039 tons, with the best entries being
2,800 tons and 2,000 tons. Five vessels of other nationalities brought the remaining 1,326 tons. With regard to freight for ports beyond, no British vessel made an entry, the total being carried by two vessels under other flags,
and one of them, a Dutch steamer, carried no fewer than 10,775 tons.

SHIPPING NOTES.

the Bank Line Wharf at Pottinger

The total number of deck passengers
entered for the twenty-four hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday was 511; while, for the twenty-four hours ended at 9 a.m.
on Saturday, the figures were 920.
